STORRS TRUSTEES ADD TO EXTENSION FORCE.

Appoint Workers Who Will Serve in Co-operation With State Food Committee.

The trustees of the Connecticut Agricultural college have made two additions to the extension service force, appointing workers who will serve under the direction of the college in co-operation with the Connecticut Committee of Food Supply in the campaign for increased food production and conservation in the state. Benjamin W. Southwick was put on full time as an extension agronomist and Miss Maude E. Hayes was named as a leader in home economics by the trustees.

Mr. Southwick has been employed on the teaching and experimental staff of the college and has done considerable work throughout the state in co-operation with the extension service. Miss Hayes has been head of the home economics department for several years and has also done considerable extension work. She will act as leader of the women agents in the various counties and will have charge of the home economic work in the state.

The Connecticut Committee of Food Supply has taken up the matter of glass fruit jars for canning and in co-operation with the Massachusetts Committee of Food Conservation is making a determined effort to keep these two states supplied with jars. The following notice addressed to jobbers and dealers in such jars was given out yesterday at the headquarters of the Connecticut Committee of Food Supply:

"Owing to the great increase in the planning of vegetables for canning, we are in need of a large quantity of glass jars and containers will be far above the average this year.

The available supply of glass fruit jars in Connecticut is making a determined effort to keep these two states supplied with jars. The following notice addressed to jobbers and dealers in such jars was given out yesterday at the headquarters of the Connecticut Committee of Food Supply:

"The Connecticut Committee of Food Supply conservatively estimates that the demand for glass jars and containers will be far above the average this year.

To this end we request that jobbers and dealers in this product to cooperate with the Connecticut Committee of Food Supply. If they are not getting shipments of jars from the factory in sufficient quantities to meet their requirements.

This committee offers its services to every jobber and dealer in the effort to facilitate transit of these goods.

"Blanks may be had at the committee's rooms, No. 36 Pearl street, Hartford, or will be mailed on request. These blanks must be properly filled out in order that the committee may efficiently and expeditiously assist you along the desirable of an immediate reply from these interested.

The part which the Connecticut Agricultural college is taking in the war work of the state is outlined in a letter to the President of the Chamber of Commerce of the state, dated May 10, 1917. The letter is as follows: "The Connecticut Committee of Food Supply, President Beach says that the most important thing that can be done for the nation at this time is to have a campaign for the production of food. The college next fall will withdraw from their schools for agricultural or military service, will be able to report on the production of records for their principal, satisfactorily covering their entire requirements up to the time they leave school.

President Beach says that the students at Storrs have been released for military and agricultural service a month ahead of the regular time of the closing of school, and gives a summary of the present occupation of the student body as follows:

Army 27
Garden work in connection with the Extension Service 16

Fred B. Griffin, who has traveled considerably through the state's agricultural districts in connection with the "Bigger Crops" speaking campaign of the Connecticut Committee of Food Supply, said that the speakers find in traveling around the state and attending the various meetings that a great many of the farmers are awake to their duty and are increasing their acreage to a considerable extent. Of course, he said, there are certain ones who are slow to do anything, but we are glad to report that the majority of the people are planting from a patriotic as well as from a financial standpoint. We believe that the income in good crops will warrant all the energy and

HOW TO BE RID OF DISGUSTING DANDRUFF

The only way to get permanently rid of disgusting, untidy dandruff is to correct its cause. Shampooing merely cleanses the scalp for a few days then the scales form again as thick as ever.

Only a few days' massage with Parian Sage should be needed to destroy the germs that cause the dandruff to form. The scalp becomes healthy; the hair will grow better and show more life and vitality and you should no longer be troubled by dandruff. Flaked, dull or lifeless hair is quickly restored to beauty by this treatment, which is absolutely harmless and will not stain the hair or make it greasy.

A little bottle, enough to last a long time, can be obtained from Lee & Osgood and druggists everywhere, and is not expensive. Be sure you get genuine Parian Sage (pronounced "sage") as that is the one that is guaranteed by the makers.
